SYNOPSIS

Gabe is worried about his role at Common Ground. He is starting to feel that his traditional educational programs don't make much sense when there is so much else that needs doing after the storm. The Director encourages him to think about all of the people who may be looking for work after the storm and to focus on connecting them to the appropriate jobs. Meanwhile, the Center is in need of a new employee itself—a Communications Associate to help get the word out about the Center's programs. It's up the director to find the perfect candidate...who may just turn out to be a familiar face!
