

WEB RESOURCES FOR THE GREEN MOUNTAIN PAPER COMPANY

The following websites have all kinds of interesting information and fun activities connected to what you are learning in The Green Mountain Paper Company. To explore each site, first copy its web address into the address bar on your computer's browser. Then press the Return key on your key board, and you're at the site!

Arbor Day Foundation: Teaching Youth About Trees

The goal of the Arbor Day Foundation is to educate future generations about the essential role of trees in the ecosystem, and how to protect them. In Carly's Kids Corner, you can play interactive games about trees, take a tour of Arbor Day Farm, and find out about planting, nurturing, and preserving trees.

<http://www.arborday.org/kids> (Click "Carly's Kids Corner")

National Geographic for Kids

In its effort to protect the planet's natural resources, the National Geographic Society tries to reach as many young people as it can. This website offers news, activities, games, and stories about the environment, forests, and animal habitats.

<http://kids.nationalgeographic.com>

The Green Squad

This site was developed by the National Resources Defense Council, a major environmental action group. The Green Squad is a team of kids who are investigating unhealthy or environmentally wasteful practices in their school. They recommend smart and easy ways to fix them. By following the Green Squad's investigation, you will increase your awareness about waste and pollutants and get tips on how to contribute to a greener environment.

<http://www.nrdc.org/greensquad>

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Student Center

Here you can play games, watch videos, and take quizzes on all aspects of environmental protection. If you choose to do so, click on the link EPA High School Site at the bottom of the page to move on to high school, where you'll be able to explore more challenging materials on topics such as ecosystems and conservation.

<http://www.epa.gov/students>